Course	English proficiency is a prerequisite to thrive in the legal profession,
Description	allowing students to navigate the complexities of law efficiently. This course thoroughly examines the English language and literature designed for first-semester BA.LL. B students. It includes fundamental grammar principles, analysis of specific literary works, vocabulary enhancement with a legal emphasis, improvement of comprehension and public speaking skills, and writing techniques.
Objectives:	 To understand the fundamentals of grammar and distinguish between reported speech, question tags, and active and passive voice. To analyze prescribed theatrical and prose texts to identify themes, characters, and sociocultural situations, demonstrating their understanding and analytical abilities with literary works. Effectively convey concepts and arguments in legal situations by writing and speaking in legal language, demonstrating the practical application of taught terminology. To learn comprehension of passages and presentations, with an emphasis on coherence, organization, and substance, to improve the ability to evaluate and critique materials.
Course	Students will demonstrate that they understand the principles of Outcomes	grammar and literary analysis methodologies, allowing them to
(Cos)	communicate well in both English and literature.
	 Students will better understand various literary works by interpreting nuanced themes and sociocultural settings via the investigation of prescribed texts. Students will develop a specific vocabulary of legal words and will be able to confidently and accurately engage in professional communication and legal discourse. Students will improve their comprehension and presentation skills and be able to exhibit competency in understanding challenging texts and providing clear and well-organized presentations, preparing them for academic and professional success.

SEA	60 Marks
Effective from Ac	cademic Year: 2024-2025
Course	The Law of Contract is integral to day-to day life as we enter into numerous
Description	contracts daily. The law of contract is based on the principle of 'Pacta sunt Servanda' which means that 'agreements must be kept'. The contractual agreements form the backbone of every relationship. The contract establishes boundaries and creates a framework for the rights and obligations of the parties involved. It provides legal remedies for parties who fail to fulfil their obligations, allowing aggrieved parties to seek damages or specific performance through courts. The Contract Law underpins virtually all commercial transactions which facilitate economic activity and fosters trust and confidence in transactions.
	The contract law includes safeguards to protect vulnerable parties from exploitation or unfair terms (rules regarding capacity, unconscionable bargains etc.) Contracts are not limited to commercial transactions but also govern and provide clarity in personal relationships (pre-nuptial agreements, custody agreements etc.)
	In essence, the law of contract permeates nearly every aspect of life, providing for protection and recourse for individuals and businesses engaged in agreements and transactions. Its importance lies in its role as a cornerstone of commerce and economic activity in a civilized society.
Objectives:	5. To understand the fundamental concepts of Contract Law.
	6. To analyze and apply contract formation principles.
	7. To evaluate legal capacity and consent in contractual agreements.
	8. To examine methods of contract discharge and remedies for breach. And analyze the enforceability and non-enforceability of valid, void and voidable contracts.
Course	1. The students would comprehend the nature of contracts, including the

Course Description

The Law of Torts is an uncodified law containing principles that have evolved from judicial decisions by courts in England. Tort law instructs us how we should conduct ourselves in our interaction with one another. It provides insights as to how our wrongful actions or omissions against another person can make us liable in tort. Wrongs such as trespass, assault, defamation, negligence, and nuisance are examples of some torts. Tort law, being a civil law, allows the person who is wronged to seek redress in the court of law for damages or compensation, injunction, or the specific restitution of property. The law also provides relief in case of mass torts or industrial torts, which are increasingly emerging due to rapid industrialization. Even where a person is not at fault, liability in tort may still arise under the principle of no-fault liability. The course also covers aspects of the consumer protection law and motor vehicles accident claims.

Objectives:

- 1. Understand fundamental principles of tort law, including duty of care, breach, causation, and damages.
- 2. Analyze legal doctrines and precedents related to negligence, intentional torts, strict liability, and defenses.
- 3. Apply legal principles to hypothetical scenarios and real-world cases and Develop analytical and problem-solving skills in tort law contexts.
- 4. Evaluate policy considerations and societal implications of tort law decisions.

Program outcomes (CO's)	 Students should be able to - to demonstrate a comprehensive understanding of fundamental principles in tort law, including duty of care, breach, causation, and damages. apply legal doctrines and precedents to analyze and evaluate negligence intentional torts, strict liability, and defenses in various contexts. effectively apply legal reasoning and problem-solving skills to identify assess, and address tort issues in hypothetical scenarios and real-world cases. communicate complex legal concepts and analyses clearly and persuasively through written assignments, oral presentations, and class discussions.
